

Reading & writing emails in other languages

By Jon Benjamin 'EXENVOID'

There are specific retail programs available to carry out this task but for fun and occasional needs to translate emails from and to other languages I highly recommend trying 'Google Translate' This is a free service and although it does not operate in your email program, it is quite simple to cut and paste text into it for translating and converting to paste back into you email program to send etc.

Example of its operations shown below.

http://translate.google.com/translate_t

Google Translate is available at the above web link

If you require training in the use of this system, please feel free to contact me for an on-site training session to get you all started.